TO THE CLASS OF 1968

"Every generation of Americans must — somewhere, sometime, somehow — pay an installment in the currency of personal sacrifice for our freedom."
General Harold K. Johnson

I have faith in the human race; I have faith in Americans; and I have a high regard for its youth — you, who tomorrow must lead a troubled and complex world in the cause of freedom. But I ask you to master yourself before you seek to master others: to have a heart and a mind which are clean, and high standards which are attainable. While you reach into an unknown future, never disregard the past — its errors as well as its successes — and be aware of your personal limitations without letting them stifle your ambition. Then you will fulfill your duty as an American patriot.

When we think of patriotism, we think in terms of duty and honor, but never forget that there are other contributing factors. Morality is a prerequisite of these virtues, for morality is the cement which holds man together as a human being. Moral principles are those rules in life which help us respect the other man, regardless of race, creed, color, or nationality. That respect is dictated by the silent voice of God in each of us — our conscience. If you heed that voice, your conscience will be strong.

Closely allied with morality is religious faith. Belief in God will help you build strong character and will mold you for your role in life as an integral part of a family. That faith is the sort of thing that will make you strong enough to know when you are weak, brave enough to face reality when you are afraid, courageous enough to stand up in the storm of life, and human enough to have compassion on those who fall. Like religion, patriotism is glorified by most of us, but, unfortunately, is all too often misunderstood by some. No greater honor can be given to any man than the privilege of serving his fellowman, his God, his country — always something bigger than self. The revering of such a privilege is patriotism. If you possess it, it will build courage when courage seems to fail you; it will give you something to cling to when the cause for faith seems nonexistent; it will create hope when hope seems to forsake you. And thus patriotism is the kind of virtue that rewards the man who possesses it.

If the going is sometimes difficult, remember the words of the great American Douglas A. MacArthur:

"Duty - Honor - Country . . . those three hallowed words reverently dictate what you ought to be, what you can be, what you will be."

No man who is fit to live need fear to die. To us here, death is the most terrible thing we know. But when we have tasted its reality it will mean to us birth, deliverance, a new creation of ourselves. It will be what health is to the sick man; what home is to the exile; what the loved one given back is to the bereaved. As we draw near to it a solemn gladness should fill our hearts. It is God's great morning lighting up the sky. Our fears are the terror of children in the night. The night with its terror, its darkness, its feverish dreams, is passing away; and when we awake it will be into the sunlight of God.
